Objectives: to examine environmental and natural resource (1) issues and discourse about the issues; (2) governance including the influence of science and power; and (3) the role production and consumption including resource dependence, the impact of disaster, and the barriers and constraints to community resilience.

Practice: students will have an opportunity to apply various approaches, concepts, and theories to explore a “real-world” natural resource and/or environmental problem.

Contact: Dr. Michelle R. Worosz, mrw0016@auburn.edu